PGA TOUR GOLF CLASSIC FOR BOWRAL GOLF CLUB

In major coup for golf in the Southern Highlands, the Bowral Golf Club has been confirmed as the venue for a new event on the Australian Professional golfing calendar, with former Australian Open champions Rodger Davis and Bob Shearer set to take part.

The inaugural Southern Highlands Legends Golf Classic will be played at the Club on Tuesday 17 November as a part of the Australian PGA's Legends Tour.

The Legends tour is for Australian PGA members and features some of the country's best golfers of the past 30 years in the tour which visits all states of Australia.

The Bowral Golf Club's one day tournament will form part of the NSW leg of the Legends tour which sees players taking part in various events over the first three weeks of November.

It is expected a field of over 200 professionals and amateurs will play on the day with Australian golfing greats Rodger Davis, Bob Shearer and Mike Clayton already confirmed for the Classic.

New Bowral Golf Club President, Grant Blanchard said the Club is delighted to be holding such an event.

"Some of the players on the Legends Tour are names that are synonymous with the halcyon days of Australian golf through the seventies and eighties and it will be wonderful to welcome them to our Club. The event will further cement the Bowral Golf Club's reputation as the pre-eminent club in the Southern Highlands."
